Councillor Clyde Loakes
Deputy Leader and Cabinet Member for Environment

DEAR RESIDENT

We know how much pride you take in your local neighbourhoods which is why we are committed to keeping them clean and tackling enviro-crimes such as littering and fly-tipping.

Last year we launched our new Neighbourhoods team, which has seen us take a more localised approach to make sure our streets are kept clean and safe. The team is already starting to make a difference locally, by becoming more responsive to dealing with issues such as poor waste and recycling behaviours, fly-tipping, food enforcement, noise nuisance, planning enforcement and anti-social behaviour.

One of the key roles of the Neighbourhoods team is to work more closely with our residents to make sure that we are in tune with our neighbourhoods and tackling the issues that matter most to you. I'd like to ask that you continue to work with us by reporting fly-tips, planning breaches and anti-social behaviour so that we can deal with them as quickly as possible. We've also made it quicker and easier to report issues like fly-tipping online via the new Council website.

We know that the majority of our residents respect the local environment and do their bit to keep our streets clean, but a small minority can ruin it for everyone else. That's why we've pledged to come down hard on those who blight our communities by committing enviro-crimes like littering, spitting, dog fouling and dropping cigarette butts. We have increased our on-street enforcement efforts and have issued nearly 3,500 fixed penalty notices for low-level enviro-crimes in the last six months alone. Those caught committing larger enviro-crime offences in our borough such as fly-tipping will be prosecuted and risk having their vehicles seized and crushed.

We are one of the few London boroughs to offer free large item collections, and I encourage residents to make use of this service when they replace items like furniture and white goods. You can now book your collection online via our new website so it's even easier to get your items picked up. We are also providing more on-street recycling bins across the borough, so everyone can do their bit by recycling on the go.

I would like to personally thank all of our residents for their efforts to keep our neighbourhoods clean and tidy, for example by taking litter home with them, recycling on the go, clearing up after their pets, reporting fly-tippers and other environmental criminals or taking part in our spring cleans. However, there is still more we can do together.

MAKING SURE YOUR STREET IS CLEAN GREEN SAFE LOVED

KEEPING OUR BOROUGH CLEAN

£7m spent each year on cleaning streets and parks

800 litter bins across the borough

190k refuse and recycling collections made each week

41,860 large item collections made last year

3173 littering offences last year

£80 is the fine for dropping litter

1 each street is cleaned at least once a week

£0 large item collection is free for residents

BIN YOUR LITTER

As part of Cleveland Park Residents' Association (CPRA) Helen Jackson is passionate about making the place she lives as beautiful as possible and that means binning your litter.

Helen works alongside Ralph Meanley, her partner Roy Messenger and a host of residents from Cleveland Park Avenue, Cleveland Park Crescent and Vintry Mews.

As regular entrants to the London in Bloom competition, they always make sure that their area is looking the best.

"We organise six clean-ups during the year. Residents get together on a Sunday for two hours and trim front hedges, clear front gardens of rubbish, weed pavements, pick up litter and make sure that all our tree pits are planted and maintained. Clean ups also gives us the chance to get to know our neighbours much better."

Helen added: "I'm a big believer in recycling at home and the dual bins encourage people to do it on the streets. I especially like the bins which also take gum and cigarette butts.

"It's a good idea to encourage everyone to do their bit and not just complain about litter on the streets – it's everyone's responsibility not just the Councils."

All aboard at Lea Bridge!

Lea Bridge Station is reopening with a full service running from Monday 16 May Leyton's Lea Bridge Station is reopening to passengers after 31 years of closure, marking the culmination of a 15 year vision for Waltham Forest Council.

The first full day of services at the station will start just after 6am on Monday 16 May, while some evening services will start the night before on Sunday 15 May.

The station (Argall Way, E10 7PG) means that Waltham Forest residents will have direct links to both Stratford and Tottenham Hale and journey times of just five minutes in either direction.

Stratford is the nearest high-speed station to central London, connecting to services going to Europe, and Tottenham Hale provides connections to Stansted Airport, meaning the new station will open Waltham Forest up to further commercial opportunities in London and beyond.

The station closed to passengers in 1985, but thanks to funding of £5.3million from Waltham Forest Council, £1.1million from the Department for Transport's New Stations Fund and £5.5million from Section 106 contributions (managed by the Stratford Implementation Group) it has been possible to see the route reopened.

"Lea Bridge Station will really help open Leyton up for growth, giving the area better and faster links to some of London's crucial transport hubs, and make it a more attractive prospect for developers, businesses and residents," said Council Leader, Chris Robbins.

"For years it's been a project we have committed to making happen, and it will form the centrepiece of wider plans to rejuvenate the area and create a new Leyton village, spurring even more regeneration and change."

The new station is expected to service 352,000 passengers a year by 2031. The first full day's service will start just after 6am on Monday 16 May 2016, although limited services are expected to be running from 8pm on Sunday 15 May.

Services through the station will run approximately every 30 minutes, and will be provided by Abellio Greater Anglia, who operate a number of train services across London and the South-East.

The station also offers a new cycle hub with space for 50 bikes – funded by the Mini-Holland programme. Commuters cycling to the station can park their bike securely for just £10 a year.

A party fit for a queen

Four residents celebrated their 90th birthdays at a party hosted by Mayor of Waltham Forest, Cllr Saima Mahmud

Mayor hosts afternoon tea for residents turning 90 in April

Party held to mark the 90th birthday of Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II

Four residents who celebrated their 90th birthdays in April, and their guests, were invited to a special party hosted by the Mayor of Waltham Forest, Cllr Saima Mahmud.

The event was held to mark the 90th birthday of Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II on Thursday 21 April, and took place at Waltham Forest Town Hall.

Daphne Dodd, from Wood Street, has lived in the borough for more than 45 years and celebrated her birthday on 16 April.

Violet Jacob has lived in Chingford for 12 years, and was a keen tap dancer in her younger days, saying: "I've always been active and kept busy; that's what sees you to 90! My sister and I were the same ages as the Queen and Princess Margaret, so I always imagined them having fun together like we used to!"

Lilian Johnson, from Leytonstone, celebrated her 90th birthday on 15 April, and has lived in the borough for more than 60 years. Lilian remembers watching the coronation on television. Her family were one of the few on the street who owned a television, so everyone joined them to watch.

Norman Roach was born in Wood Street and has lived there for his entire 90 years, except for three years spent fighting in Burma during World War II as part of the Worcestershire Regiment. Norman was also the chief electrician at Walthamstow Stadium, and says he has "lots of happy memories of living in Walthamstow".

Council Leader, Chris Robbins, dropped in to wish the residents a happy birthday, while Deputy Lieutenant for the London Borough of Waltham Forest, Major Jeremy Fern TD DL, also attended and proposed a special birthday toast to Her Majesty.

In my opinion

Dan Goodhind

Founder of swopp, a new Walthamstow-based community project

How would you define the word 'waste'? Something that's no longer useful, perhaps? Taking up unnecessary space in your cupboards, loft or garage? Destined for the dustbin?

If that's the case, I would argue that waste doesn't really exist. What does exist is good stuff in the wrong place. I'm determined to put that stuff back into use, with my new community project, 'swopp', based in Walthamstow.

I'm certainly not alone in my crusade. Once you start digging, it's easy to find a plethora of amazing environmental organisations doing their bit to prevent useful things from being destroyed and sent to landfill.

Take WRAP, for example. It stands for Waste Resource Action Programme. They're helping businesses and individuals cut down on their waste, rethink products and use resources in more sustainable ways. The London Farmers' Markets bring fresh, local produce to the city's playgrounds, car parks and town squares, while supporting our farmers.

Meanwhile, the folks at Restart Project are bringing their now famous Restart Parties to communities all over the city – arming people with the skills to revive their favourite electronic devices. Surely the modern-day equivalent of 'teaching a person to fish'?!

If their success is anything to go by, there's certainly an appetite among local people to live in a more environmentally friendly way through recycling and reuse. I've been lucky enough to witness it first hand with the first two 'swopp' events I've put on at Wild Card Brewery in Walthamstow this year.

The idea behind swopp is simple. We all have things hidden away in our cupboards and lofts, such as an unwanted gift or a fad you once bought into. With swopp, we want you to bring those things out of early retirement and give someone else the opportunity to love and appreciate them.

At past events, we've seen successful swopps between designer sunglasses, yoga equipment, a coffee machine, retro games console, specialist hardback books, and more.

So think twice before you toss something in the bin. Or go rummaging in the dustiest corners of your attic and see what's hiding up there. And then bring it to our next event. You might just find someone willing to give it a new home.

The next swopp community event is on Sunday 15 May, 2–6pm at the Wild Card Brewery (Unit 7, Ravenswood Industrial Estate, Shernhall Street, E17 9HQ). Find out more at www.facebook.com/swoppcommunity.

Our Parks to remain free

Fun fitness and sport sessions in parks and open spaces are to remain free for the third year running after the Council secured funding to continue supporting the popular 'Our Parks' programme.

This means residents can carry on enjoying bootcamps, box fits, buggy fits and many more activities without having to pay a penny.

The summer programme takes place in parks across the borough and anyone can take part whether they train regularly or want to start exercising more.

Waltham Forest resident Ruth Fenton told Waltham Forest News: "I am so pleased to hear Waltham Forest Council has continued to fund Our Parks.

"I've been using Our Parks since being diagnosed with diabetes and it has been so important for me to exercise regularly. As conditions like diabetes become more and more prevalent it is important for fantastic services like Our Parks to have the support of the borough.

"I absolutely love all the exercises classes I join weekly – the service is fantastic – and the opportunity to use our gorgeous local parks in lots of different ways is crucial.

"I went to an Our Parks class recently in Lloyd Park – from the William Morris gardens to the back playing fields, the whole park was filled with people exercising, socialising and playing."

Aside from the obvious health benefits, the scheme gives people the chance to exercise outside for free, and the social element of meeting new people is an attraction for many.

Council Leader, Chris Robbins, said: "Waltham Forest Council was the first local authority to pilot Our Parks two years ago, and in that time we've had more than 6,400 local people register to take part.

"Its success has been fantastic to see, and we're proud to be able carry on funding the programme so residents can continue enjoying it free of charge."

School place offers

Pupils from Walthamstow's Willowfield Humanities College. The school relocated to a bigger and better state-of-the-art facility in September 2015

Thousands of parents across the borough were given good news on primary and secondary school place offer days this year, as they discovered if their child made it into one of their preferred schools.

Last month saw 85 per cent of families in Waltham Forest who applied on time receive an offer of a place at their top choice primary school. This followed news in March that the Council offered more than 81 per cent of young people a place at their preferred secondary school – the highest rate in the capital.

Data released by the Pan-London Admissions Board showing on-time applications as at National Offer Day also placed Waltham Forest top in London for offering children a place at one of their six preferred secondaries, with nearly 98 per cent securing a place at one of their chosen schools. In the same category at primary school level, 97 per cent of children were given a place at one of their six preferred schools.

Cllr Mark Rusling, Cabinet Member for Children and Young People, said: "It's great news that we've been able to give so many young people a place at one of their preferred schools – at both primary and secondary level. Our children deserve the best start in life and going to a school of their choice helps give them this.

"London's fast-rising population and the Government's decision to ban local authorities from opening new schools make our ability to ensure we have enough school places to meet demand much more difficult. But local parents can rest assured that we are doing all we can to plan ahead and help create more places so that families across Waltham Forest receive good news on school offer days."

The Council has spent in excess of £100million providing new places to meet demand since 2008, and already has plans in place to continue creating more places in the coming years. As well as supporting expansion projects at Council-maintained schools to enable them to continue offering a good or outstanding Ofsted-rated education, the Council has worked collaboratively with successful academies to expand their primary provision.

In 2015 and 2016 alone, 1,320 additional places have been created in Waltham Forest's primary schools – with a further 630 due in 2017. Next year will also see the creation of 1,090 places in the borough's secondary schools to help meet demand.

"Our children deserve the best start in life. Going to a school of their choice helps give them this."

In brief

Jack Cornwell event

The Band of Her Majesty's Royal Marines Collingwood will perform at a community event which will see a special paving stone laid in honour of the youngest person to be awarded a Victoria Cross in World War One. On Thursday 26 May, the courage shown by Leyton resident John 'Jack' Cornwell, who died aged just 16 during the Battle of Jutland, will be remembered at a ceremony in Coronation Gardens (E10 5NG). Council representatives, members of the Royal Navy, and relatives of Jack Cornwell, as he was commonly known, will pay their respects at the event, which starts at 11am. Residents are also invited to attend. The Victoria Cross commemorative paving stones programme is run by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

New Council website

Residents will find it easier to access Council services online, as a new website has been unveiled. The user-friendly layout and 'clean' design will make it easier and faster for residents to use the website on their smartphone, tablet or computer. More Council services are going to be available online, such as registering a birth or booking a large item collection; offering greater convenience for residents, with services being available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The Council is aware that some residents may need a hand to get online, so help will be available.

Lighting up the borough

Waltham Forest Council has four key priorities to help improve the lives of everyone who lives and works in the borough. In this edition we look at what is being done to help build a strong local economy and thriving town centres

A £1.1m grant for a Creative Industries Zone will provide extra workshop spaces and improve employment opportunities for local makers

Local musicians, traders and street performers are wanted for the new weekly Twilight Market

Maintaining a strong local economy and ensuring our town centres prosper is a key priority for the Council. We have ambitious plans for the regeneration of Waltham Forest, which means supporting investment and development, providing greater job and skills opportunities for residents, and making the borough a better place to live, work in and enjoy.

Blackhorse Lane

Last year the Council secured Housing Zone status for Blackhorse Lane from the GLA. This allows the Council to accelerate the delivery of new affordable and private homes in the area, along with improvements to services and infrastructure to support this development. Along with a focus on car free developments, improvements planned for Blackhorse Road Station and surrounding public space, there are plans for a brand new purpose-built medical centre on Sutherland Road, replacing the current facility on Sinnott Road.

Plans to expand local schools by 1,470 permanent places are also underway complementing the opening of Willowfield Humanities College in September 2015. The relocation of the school to Blackhorse Road followed a £25million Council-funded project to provide a bigger and better school building. The new state-of-the-art school building has enabled the school to grow into a four form entry to a six form entry school – meaning they can offer an additional 300 places to pupils.

Art Project

Visitors to Walthamstow's Blackhorse Road can't have failed to notice the eye-catching piece of street art that has been created on the exterior of the former Standard Music Venue.

The piece is the work of Irish artist Maser, who recently exhibited his solo show, 'Orbiting the Periphery', at central London's Lazarides Gallery.

The work was commissioned by the Council, with match funding from a number of organisations, as part of the 'Paint Your London' project. Curated by Wood Street Walls, Paint Your London was a month-long mural exhibition which saw walls and buildings across the borough brought to life through street art.

The installation on the former Standard building was fully supported by the landowners, TFC. TFC has submitted a pre-planning application for a mixed-use development on the site comprising retail, housing and a new music venue. They will be exhibiting their plans to the public before submitting a formal planning application.

Creative Industries Zone

Earlier this year it was announced that the Council had been successful in securing a £1.1million grant from the GLA to create a Creative Industries Zone in Blackhorse Lane. The project will transform underused space in the area to provide more workshop capacity and creative co-working space.

The new facilities that the grant will provide will help to create even greater employment opportunities for creative industry workers in the borough. The Council is determined to create a vibrant economy in Walthamstow, and the Blackhorse Lane area in particular. In addition, 2,500 new homes are earmarked for Blackhorse Lane, as part of the Council's ambition to see 12,000 new homes in the borough by 2020.

Twilight Market

The Walthamstow Twilight Market returned last month, and will now take place every Thursday evening from 4pm to 10pm throughout spring and summer.

Held in Walthamstow Town Square and Gardens next to Walthamstow Central station and The Mall (High Street, E17 7JN), the Twilight Market offers a mouth-watering selection of street food and delicious drinks from across the globe. Entry is free.

Originally launched last year, the Twilight Market is funded by the Council and GLA, and is organised by Street Concepts. The now weekly market will also give local traders the opportunity to showcase their wares in a vibrant setting. Traders, musicians and street performers interested in getting involved can get in touch by emailing info@street-concepts.co.uk.

Employment and Skills

With so much growth taking place in Waltham Forest, the Council recently launched a new Employment and Skills Partnership to ensure that local people are able to take advantage of the increased opportunities that are being made available across the borough.

"We want to create clear pathways into employment and enable residents to improve their skills," said Cllr Clare Coghill, Cabinet Member for Economic Growth and High Streets. "We can't do this alone, so we have established the Employment and Skills Partnership so that local partners can come together to work towards our common goal of supporting local employment and skills development."

The Council has also established a Partnership Board, which met for the first time in March. The Board is made up of representatives from the Council, education and training providers, employers, investors, developers, charities and other local organisations.

What you say

Residents tell Waltham Forest News what they think about the Council's efforts to build a strong local economy and improve the borough's town centres

Katie Taylor, Walthamstow

"I think there is a lot to do in Walthamstow, it has everything you need and the cinema is great. I tend to spend my money locally and I was pleased to see a new Saturday food market open up in Orford Road recently. I think it's important to keep and encourage more independent shops in the borough, rather than too many chains stores. It helps make the area unique, appeals to residents and draws visitors in from other boroughs."

Jadwiga Mazepa, Walthamstow

"I really like the Empire Cinema, and lots of my friends visit on weekends with their children. It's good to have, because we never used to be able to go to the cinema before. I really like the area, it's usually busy and I like to shop here because there is lots of choice. But most of all I like Walthamstow because of the location, the schools and the nice play areas for children."

Peter Allen, Leyton

"I come to Walthamstow and at Bakers Arms because it has all the shops I need; I can get everything done at one time and pay my bills. I also like using Walthamstow Market. But I think there needs to be more access to public toilets. Having more businesses join the Council's toilet scheme would be a good idea, as people would be more likely to stay out for longer and spend their money."

Amine Kabtan, Walthamstow

"I'm a very busy man; I work lots of hours. I look after the children in the morning and work in the afternoon, so I like to come to Walthamstow because it has all the shops I need. I know a lot of people like the new cinema and restaurants, but I'm too busy (to go)!"

Cigarette seller prosecuted

A Chingford off-licence manager has been fined £800 and been ordered to pay £580 in court costs after he was caught selling a packet of cigarettes to a 15-year-old. Mr Cetin Tonbul, manager of Quality Corner Off Licence (Hale End Road, E4 9PT) made the sale during a test purchase operation carried out by the Council's Trading Standards team in November 2015. The purchase was made by an underage volunteer, and was witnessed by a Police officer. Mr Tonbul pleaded guilty to the offence, and the case was heard at Thames Magistrates Court on 1 April 2016.

• For more information on the work of Trading Standards visit www.walthamforest.gov.uk/trading-standards.

Bin your litter

With more than 800 litter bins located across the borough, there is no excuse to drop rubbish or leave dog mess on the ground. This is the message from the Council's latest enviro-crime campaign which features local residents who highlight the importance of using litter bins along with the Council's free large item collection service. More than £6 million of Council tax payers' money is spent each year on keeping your streets clean, clearing up dog mess and removing fly-tips from the borough. By making sure that residents do the right thing, and dispose of their waste in the correct way, we can save your money.

Neighbourhoods officers have uncovered poor living conditions in unlicensed privately rented properties

Rogue landlords fined

- Landlords now being prosecuted for not licencing their properties
- Licencing scheme aims to improve conditions in the private rented sector

The campaign to crack down on rogue landlords and drive up property standards in the private rented sector for residents continues to gather pace. Twelve landlords operating in the borough have now been prosecuted by the Council for failing to licence their properties, with courts ordering fines and costs of over £66,000.

In March 2015 the Council launched its Private Rented Property Licencing (PRPL) scheme, which requires all Waltham Forest landlords to have a separate licence for each property they rent in the private sector. Once in possession of a licence the landlord must comply with certain conditions, otherwise they could be prosecuted and fined.

The scheme has now been running for just over a year, and there have been over 19,000 licence applications so far. To maximise compliance with the scheme the Council has been proactively seeking out privately rented properties where no application for a licence has been made.

Action days now take place regularly across the borough, using intelligence to uncover landlords who are shirking their responsibility to obtain a licence, and to also identify properties where poor living conditions are suspected.

The action days have been a great success so far, with over 7,500 properties visited, 150 licence inspections carried out and 125 new properties identified as requiring a licence.

They have also uncovered some very poor living conditions in the private rented sector, include a property that was claimed to be owner occupied, but was actually being rented by 11 people living in extremely cramped conditions. In cases like this the landlords will be given notice to make the required improvements, or they could face further action from the Council including prosecution.

In addition, Council officers also use the action days to visit properties that are suspected as being privately rented but where no application for a landlord licence has been made. If this is confirmed then the cases are taken forward for prosecution.

Twelve landlords have already been prosecuted for failing to obtain a licence, with some being ordered to pay fines and costs of over £10,000 after being found guilty by the courts.

"Landlords have now had ample time to apply for their licence, so there is simply no excuse to not have one in place by now", said Cllr Khevyn Limbajee, Cabinet Member for Housing. "Any landlord who thinks they can avoid it needs to think again, as they could soon receive a visit from us and end up in court.

"Waltham Forest is a flagship borough for improving conditions in the private rented sector and reducing anti-social behaviour through our landlord licencing scheme. We are determined to ensure that every privately rented property obtains a licence."

More info

For more information visit www.walthamforest.gov.uk or email propertylicencing@walthamforest.gov.uk.

Fact file

- Every privately rented home in Waltham Forest must have a PRPL licence, unless an exemption applies.
- Owners of multiple rented properties must complete an application for each property.
- A licence costs £650 for a period of up to five years.
- Landlords found without a licence could face prosecution and an unlimited fine.
- Landlords who do not comply with licence conditions could face a maximum fine of £5,000.
- A register of all licenced properties in the borough is available on the Council's website.

Fine for fake trainers

- Man was caught selling counterfeit trainers in Walthamstow
- Court orders him to pay fines and costs of over £1,100

A market trader has been prosecuted for selling fake Converse trainers. Picture posed by models.

A market trader who sold fake Converse trainers on Walthamstow High Street has been prosecuted and fined after he was caught out by officers from the Council's Trading Standards team.

In July 2015 Trading Standards officers paid a visit to a market stall on Walthamstow High Street, after receiving a report that Converse trainers were being sold at suspiciously low prices.

When questioned the stall holder; Mr Hassan Gulzar, of Cassiobury Road, Walthamstow, could not provide evidence that he had purchased them from a reputable source. The officers seized the trainers and sent them to the trademark representative for testing. This confirmed that the trainers were not genuine Converse, and were in fact counterfeit.

Mr Gulzar attended Thames Magistrates' Court on Friday 8 April 2016, and pleaded guilty to the offence. He was fined £415, ordered to pay costs of £649.28 and a victim surcharge of £42 – a total financial penalty of £1106.28.

"The sale of counterfeit items will not be tolerated in Waltham Forest, and we will always look to prosecute anyone that gets caught in the act," said Cllr Clyde Loakes, Deputy Leader and Cabinet Member for Environment.

"Hopefully the fine issued by the court will make this unscrupulous trader think twice before trying to peddle fake goods in our borough again.

"Residents should watch out for counterfeit goods, especially if the price tag looks too good to be true. There will often be other tell-tale signs like poor logos or misspellings on labels and packaging. If you do buy counterfeit goods you are likely to be left disappointed, as they are often poor quality and can even be dangerous."

Counterfeit items are often brought into the country illegally, causing huge losses to UK tax revenues. They are also damaging to the businesses of law-abiding traders who only sell genuine goods.

The Council's Trading Standards team aims to protect consumers as well as honest traders and the local economy. If you suspect someone of carrying out illegal street trading you can report it via the Council website.

Leytonstone

Sam Thomas in the recording studio in his back garden in Leytonstone

London's smallest studio

- Musician Sam Thomas has set up a new recording studio in Leytonstone and it's available for hire
- Local people can also take lessons in guitar or drums

Say the words 'recording studio' and you probably imagine your favourite singer or band in a gigantic room, surrounded by a mixing desk the size of the Starship Enterprise.

But for one resident, the words bring to mind something altogether smaller. Leytonstone musician Sam Thomas has just finished constructing his very own recording studio in the tiny garden of his Leytonstone home!

Waltham Forest News dropped by the East London Mini Music Studio, located just off Queens Road, to find out more.

"I've been making music as long as I can remember," Sam told Waltham Forest News. "My mum was an opera singer and music was ingrained in me from an early age."

A graduate of Westminster University's Commercial Music course, Sam has composed music for dance, theatre and film. He also released his debut album, Blind Theatre, in October 2013.

"I guess you could say I have always had a fairly experimental instrumental style," said Sam. I have dyslexia, which meant that I had to learn music theory in my own way. The good thing is, this taught me that everyone has different strengths in the way they learn. I try to identify these and teach in a way that works best for the individual.

"Studying for music exams can be great, but they're not appropriate for everyone. If you want to be guitarist in a death metal band, your bandmates probably won't care if you don't have a distinction at grade eight!"

Sam moved to Leytonstone around a year ago. Before then, he had been living above a professional recording studio – Cafe Music Studios – in Bow.

He said: "When I moved I had the idea of finding a place with a small garden, so I could build a rehearsal room. Then I realized that I could build my own studio, so I always have access to recording facilities when I need them. I did some research, and realized that a home office building would make a great studio.

"A lot of people recommended Leytonstone to me and said that there was a great arts and music scene. I was also very drawn to the idea of living near the forest.

"I bought a home office – the smallest that I could find – and started wiring in all the equipment. Soon enough I had my own small, but perfectly formed, studio!

"I absolutely love living here now. Being in Leytonstone is like living in a little town on the edge of London, but with the advantages of still being on the tube and having an easy journey to wherever you need to be in London."

Sam's studio has an acoustic piano, keyboards, drum kit, guitars and bass guitars. Offering extraordinary value for money, he charges just £15 an hour for use of the studio. Guitar and drum lessons are £25 an hour or £15 for half an hour.

Sam said: "I like to charge a flat rate, and I can be as involved as you want me to be. I'm happy to help out with the technical side and show you how to use the equipment, or if you prefer I can take a back seat.

"Whether someone would just like to hire the studio to 'lay down' some vocals for a track they've already recorded, or they would like to collaborate fully on a project, I'm really keen to hear from other local musicians."

Calling filmmakers

The organizers of the annual Leytonstone Festival are calling on the borough's filmmakers to submit their locally-themed short films as part of a three-night celebration of Alfred Hitchcock. 'Hitchcock's Home' will take place between Thursday 14 and Saturday 16 July at St John's Church (Church Lane, E11 1HH). A different Alfred Hitchcock film will be screened each night, and visitors can enjoy tasty cinema-style treats. The group is looking for short films to show before each evening's main event. So if you have produced a short film on a local theme, or anything 'hitchcock-esque' why not get in touch? Your film could be shown to over 900 people each evening! The group is also keen to hear from local people who would be able to volunteer a few hours of their time to help out during the festival. Volunteers can enjoy free entry to an event of their choice, and even bag a free t-shirt.

• Email hello@hitchcockshome.co.uk or visit www.facebook.com/HitchcocksHome.

Fit Mamas

Mums looking for a fun and effective workout that fits around childcare responsibilities will be pleased to hear about new local fitness group, Fit Mamas E11. The sessions take place in parks around Leytonstone, including Wanstead Flats Park, Abbotts Park and Cathall Green and are run by fully-qualified female personal trainers who are also mums. Sessions take place Monday to Thursday, 10.30–11am and Saturdays, 10–11am. The sessions focus on toning and strengthening core muscles and the pelvic area. And the best news of all is that you can bring your buggy and baby too.

• Phone 07885 271 111 or email fitmamas.e11@gmail.com.

Tabletop Games

Board game fans will be pleased to hear about a monthly event at the North Star pub (24 Browning Road, E11 3AR). Run by volunteers, Leytonstone Tabletop Games offers the chance to play old favourites or learn new games and meet new people. Complete novices are welcome, but if you have a good knowledge of different games, you could even help run one of the games. There are dozens to choose from, with classics such as Risk to rarer games such as One Night Ultimate Werewolf. The next event takes place on Wednesday 18 May from 7.30pm.

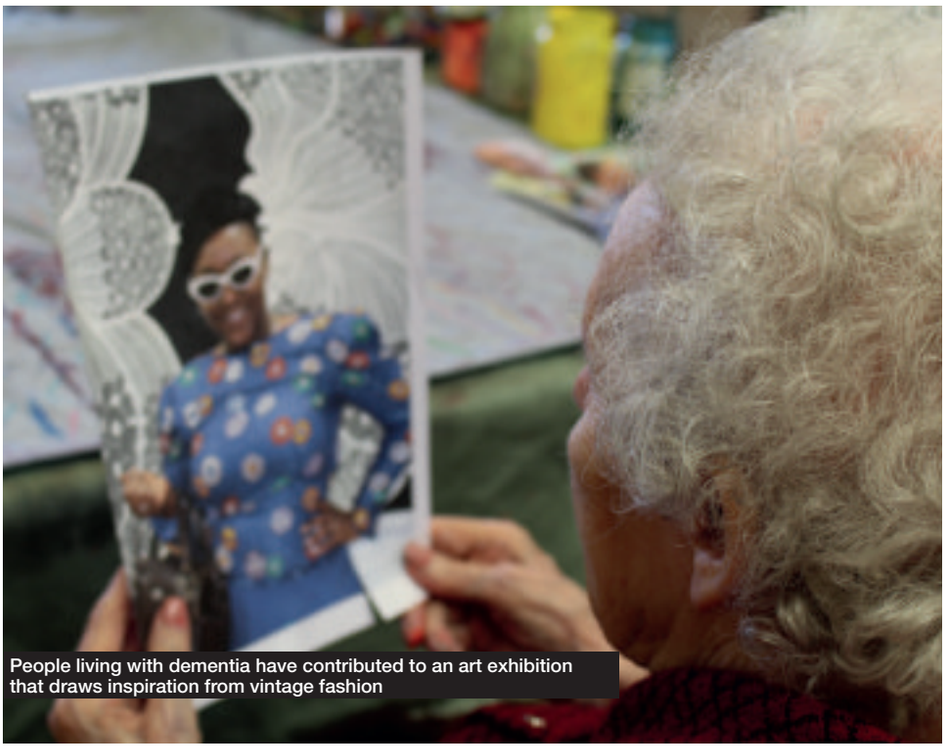
Dementia Week activities planned



People living with dementia have contributed to an art exhibition that draws inspiration from vintage fashion

Dementia Awareness Week takes place from 15 to 21 May

Show your support by taking part in events

An original, red Routemaster London Bus will be touring Waltham Forest later this month as part of a week-long series of events aiming to raise awareness about dementia.

Dementia Awareness Week takes place from Sunday 15 to Saturday 21 May and the Council is showing its support by organising a range of activities for people living with dementia. There will also be workshops for residents who want to support the awareness-raising initiative.

With support from Alzheimer's Society and Waltham Forest Dementia Action Alliance, the free-to-attend events have been designed to take residents on a journey through times past and encourage residents of all ages to reminisce together.

Monday 16 May will feature the launch of Vintage Tales Art Exhibition at Gnome House (Blackhorse Lane, E17 6DS) from 4.30pm until 6.30pm.

Throughout the spring the Council has been running a series of art workshops in venues across the borough, open to all including people living with dementia. Drawing inspiration from vintage fashion, participants have worked with local artist Anna Alcock to bring their memories to life in this special exhibition. Some items of artwork will also be on display at Leytonstone Library (6 Church Lane, E11 1HH).

Dementia Friends Workshops take place throughout the week, and the big screen in Walthamstow Town Square will be showing films and photographs of Waltham Forest's older residents, along with historic footage of the borough. It will also display useful information about services and organisations working in the borough to support people living with dementia and their carers, families and friends.

On Thursday 19 May an original Routemaster bus will be pulling up at locations across the borough to invite passers-by to take part in an interactive show with music, memories and comedy. In addition, a gramophone artist will be spinning some tunes and leading a rousing rendition of the Hokey Cokey – while Vestry House Museum will bring some original items from their collection for residents to have a look at.

Finally on Sunday 22 May Walthamstow Town Square will host All Together Now – a finale to the week featuring music, dance, sing-a-longs and dressing up.

Billed as a 'good ol' knees up', visitors will be taken on a musical tour through the decades, and offered the chance to try Tai Chi, take part in a dance workshop and join in a mass sing-a-long. A specially-formed community choir will be performing for the very first time and there will be an array of vintage clothing for visitors to try on.

Cllr Angie Bean, Waltham Forest Council's Cabinet Member for Adult Services, said: "We're getting behind Dementia Awareness Week in a big way and hopefully residents will show their support too by taking part.

"Much of what we're doing as part of the week has been made possible thanks to Victor Charles Laidler, a former Waltham Forest resident who left a sum of money to the borough after his death to help support the Council's work caring for and protecting our older, vulnerable residents."

Time for tennis

Tennis booking

A new tennis booking system is about to launch in Waltham Forest – making it easier for residents to guarantee time on court whenever they want to play. Under the new system, anyone wanting to play on one of the borough's 18 refurbished courts or four mini courts will be asked to pay a £30 annual membership fee. Family memberships will cost £45. Becoming a member allows residents to book courts up to seven days in advance as many times as they like for Lloyd and Aveling Park, and Abbotts Park – as well as giving use of the Lawn Tennis Association's rewards app, which offers rewards for every time they play tennis. The only Council-owned courts members will be required to pay extra to play on will be the state-of-the-art courts in Ridgeway Park, which will cost £5 per hour. High quality coaching is available at all Council venues for all levels, ages and abilities.

• Pick up a racket and play. Visit www.playtenniswalthamforest.com.

Video calling scheme

The Council wants to hear from residents who can't or don't use computers but who would be interested in trying out easy-to-use video calling technology called Visbuzz. It's designed for older or vulnerable adults, and it aims to reduce social isolation and improve people's general wellbeing and independence. You don't need to have a computer or the internet to register an interest – if selected you will be provided with an internet-enabled electronic device, which you can use to make video calls to friends and family – with equipment free of charge and on loan to you for the time you take part in the trial. Visbuzz does not give full internet access, only the ability to communicate with relatives, friends and others who have the ability to make video calls online. Energy costs such as charging/powering the device are not included.

• If you, or someone you know, would like to take part in a free trial, phone Sacha Whellams on 020 8496 4929 or email sacha.whellams@walthamforest.gov.uk.

Catching the con-artists

- Council, police and partner agencies cracking down on rogue traders
- Residents reminded of threat posed by doorstep thieves and con-artists

You should not answer your door to cold callers

Dozens of residents across the borough have been given crime prevention advice as part of a major crackdown on rogue traders and doorstep cold-callers.

The Operation Rogue Trader initiative, which took place on Wednesday 13 and Thursday 14 April, saw Trading Standards officers from the Neighbourhoods team work in partnership with the Police Safer Neighbourhood Teams.

Together they visited more than 70 properties in the Grove Green, Hatch Lane, Hoe Street, Lea Bridge, Leyton, Leytonstone, Valley and Wood Street wards.

At each address, officers spoke to residents and business owners about their consumer rights when contracting workmen. Any traders found working on the premises had their paperwork and business practices examined – and checks were made to ensure they were providing residents with their cancellation rights, which is a legal requirement.

In addition to providing 67 households and 55 traders with printed advice packs about fraud prevention, officers also checked traders' vehicles by running automatic number plate recognition tests, and carried out patrols in areas where building works were taking place.

The action, led by the Council's Trading Standards team, was designed to combat the threat posed by individuals or groups of people who cold-call householders, often targeting vulnerable residents, and fleece them out of money by charging excessive fees for work that they either carry out to a poor standard – or fail to undertake at all.

Residents should also be aware that some fraudsters knock on doors pretending to be tradesmen or working for respectable organisations in order to trick their way into people's homes, before stealing cash and other valuables.

Deputy Council Leader and Cabinet Member for Environment, Cllr Clyde Loakes, told Waltham Forest News: "These callous con artists and thieves not only leave hard-working residents out of pocket, they also cause enormous emotional distress – often to vulnerable, older people.

"We're committed to working with partner organisations, including the police, to expose these fraudsters and ultimately put a stop to criminal behaviour like this in our communities."

More info

Find a reputable trader by visiting www.trustmark.org.uk. To report suspicious cold callers or traders, phone Citizens Advice Consumer Service on 03454 040 506. In an emergency, dial 999.

What you need to know

- If a cold caller turns up on your doorstep and offers to carry out work to your home, you should always say 'no' and find a reputable trader instead.
- Be cautious if strangers come to your door, claiming to be working for a named organisation. Ask for identification and check it carefully. If you are unsure, phone the company to check. Get the number from a bill or the phone book rather than a number they give you, as they could be putting you through to an accomplice.
- Beware of cold callers who encourage you to leave your house – there may be someone else waiting nearby to sneak into your home to steal your valuables.
- Ask the caller to come back when someone else is home, or ask them to write to you to arrange an appointment. A genuine caller won't mind you taking these precautions.
- If you feel threatened by a cold caller, phone the police.

In brief

Museum's evening event

Vestry House Museum (Vestry Road, E17 9NH) will be celebrating springtime with a special late event on Friday 13 May as part of the nationwide Museums at Night festival.

Inspired by Frances Hodgson Burnett's novel, The Secret Garden, visitors will find all five senses engaged as they are immersed in the beauty and tranquillity of the museum's garden.

There will be an opportunity to learn about plants and their healing properties with a medical herbalist, hear readings from Burnett's novel, plant some seeds of your own and try delicious Indian street food and unique cocktails.

Vestry House Museum Late events are a chance to relax and enjoy the secluded museum and garden while seeing them from a whole new perspective. Each event features local food, trails and activities for families, and cultural entertainment for everyone.

• Museums at Night: Secret Garden Late runs from 4.30pm until 9pm. £2 donation on the door, free entry for children.

Harrow Road play area

Now that spring is here, you might be keen to take the kids out to enjoy all that the borough's fantastic parks offer. The good news for Leytonstone residents is that Harrow Road (E11 3PU) is the latest play area to benefit from a £28,000 facelift. The improvements were funded through the Council's £1million Parks and Play fund, which has enhanced 13 play areas and five open spaces in 2015 and 2016. Parents and children were asked which pieces of equipment they most wanted installed at a community day held in November 2015. The play area now offers a range of new wooden play equipment for children aged seven and under, including a 'shipwreck', log climbing frame with nets, a wobbly bridge and a bug magnifier.

Statue plans are revealed

Laurie's niece Rhodene, sculptor Graham Ibbeson, Mavis Cunningham and Council Leader, Chris Robbins, unveil the model of the statue of Laurie Cunningham

Plans to erect a statue of pioneering Leyton Orient footballer Laurie Cunningham moved a step closer this month, as a mini version of the sculpture was unveiled.

Created by renowned sculptor Graham Ibbeson, the statue will show Laurie, one of the first black footballers to represent England and the first Englishman to play for Real Madrid, in action. The larger-than-life sculpture will take pride of place in Coronation Gardens next to the Matchroom Stadium.

The design gained the seal of approval from the footballing legend's 85-year-old mother, Mavis, who was over from Jamaica visiting family.

Waltham Forest Council is spearheading a campaign to raise money to build the statue and is working alongside Leyton Orient and football's equalities organisation Kick it Out. The plan is to have the statue of Laurie ready to unveil early next year.

Chris Robbins, Leader of Waltham Forest Council, told Waltham Forest News: "Laurie Cunningham was an instrumental figure in breaking down barriers and helped pave the way for other black sportsmen and women.

"In Waltham Forest we celebrate diversity and are proud of our heritage. We think it is important to recognise the role that Laurie Cunningham played in bringing about change."

The campaign has now got the backing from a number of well known footballers including Rio Ferdinand, Bobby Zamora and West Ham captain Mark Noble. And there is still time to show your support and contribute towards Laurie's legacy.

BIN YOUR DOG MESS

While the vast majority of dog owners tidy up after their pooch, we want to remind the few who don't that they can dispose of their dog's mess in any of the borough's 800 bins. All they need to do is bag it and bin it.

The Council spends a massive £7million on cleaning the borough's streets and parks each year and we want to make sure that our residents play their part by encouraging pet owners to clean up after their dogs.

Not only is cleaning up after your dog the right thing to do but it's actually against the law not to get rid of your dog's mess. Dog fouling is an offence that could see the culprit face an £80 Fixed Penalty Notice (FPN) and failure to pay the fine within 14 days could result in a £1,000 fine.

Dog walker, Lauren Zeraschi, said: "No one likes to see dog mess on the street or in the park, it's just not nice. I always make sure I carry bags to clean up after the dogs I walk and there is always a bin nearby so that I can throw it away.

"I love living here but unfortunately there's a minority that spoil it for the rest of us. Tidying up after your dog is easy and you shouldn't expect others to do it for you. If we all did our bit, our borough would be an even nicer place to live."

LARGE ITEM COLLECTIONS

It's never been easier to get rid of your unwanted sofa, wardrobe or bookcase. You can now book a free large collection online through the Council website, and you can arrange for up to five items to be collected each time meaning there is no reason to fly-tip.

It's now quick and easy to book, just visit www.walthamforest.gov.uk/largeitemcollection and follow the instructions. There's also a list of large items that can be collected which includes the kitchen sink!

And we have also launched a premium large item collection service, which is perfect for landlords, businesses or trades people who are not eligible for the free collections. Residents can also make use of this paid-for service, which allows for up to 20 items at a time.

Tomasz from Leyton said: "I have used the Council's free large item collection many times and I'm very happy that the Council offers it to get rid of things I don't need anymore. I find it bizarre that people put large items like mattresses on the corner of their street when the Council offers a service. I think it's very important that serious action is taken against those who fly-tip."

Unwanted items that are still in good condition can be donated so that they can be used again. The Restore Community Project will collect items that are suitable for reuse. You can book a collection www.restorecommunityprojects.org or telephone 020 8493 0900 for more details.

BLOOMING LOVELY

As the greenest area north of the Thames, Waltham Forest blooms in spring. While the Council looks after and maintains the borough's parks and open spaces many green fingered residents play their part in making the borough look loved.

Walthamstow Village has won London's Best Village in the prestigious London in Bloom Awards for six years running and that's all down to the hard work of local residents. The Walthamstow Village in Bloom team (pictured) runs a monthly gardening club and tend to around 30 adopted areas including flower beds, planters, a community orchard, meadow and allotment.

Member Helen Learner, said: "Over 70 local residents take part and we have a busy year round programme of activities which anyone can get involved with and goes towards creating an amazing community spirit in the Village. We have exciting plans for planting with nectar-rich plants for the local bee population, a new orchard of fruit trees in the gardens of local housing association homes providing a green corridor into the heart of the area plus ten new tree pits are to be filled with colourful flower displays on Orford Road."

Over at Leyton, the Friends of St Mary's Nature Reserve have transformed an overgrown space that attracted anti-social behaviour into a tranquil well-kept garden. Steve Williams from the group said: "We work of the site most Sunday afternoons. Over the years we have removed sofas, supermarket trolleys, carpet, bikes, mattresses and televisions from the site."
